2. Dua Lipa – ‘Don’t Start Now’
3. Justin Bieber feat. Quavo – ‘Intentions’
4. Tones And I – ‘Dance Monkey’
5. Halsey – ‘You Should Be Sad’

Singles Highlights

#1: The Weeknd 'Blinding Lights' – The Weeknd's 'Blinding Lights' sits at #1 on the ARIA Singles Chart for a seventh straight week. 'After Hours', the title track to the Canadian's forthcoming fourth album, is at #37 in its second week in the Top 50.

#7: Lady Gaga 'Stupid Love' – American star Lady Gaga takes out her first new entry on the Singles Chart in over a year with 'Stupid Love'. It's the first track to be released from her upcoming sixth studio album, Chromatica, which is set for release on 10 April. 'Stupid Love' becomes Lady Gaga's 13th Top Ten single in Australia and the first since the multi-award-winning 'Shallow' (#1 Oct. '18). She first hit the Top Ten with 'Just Dance' (#1 Sept. '08).

#8: Doja Cat 'Say So' – In its sixth week in the Top 50, Doja Cat's 'Say So' is the week's biggest mover, climbing 13 spots to #8. It comes on the back of the release of the single's music video. As well as being the first Top Ten entry in Australia for the American rapper, it's also hit the Top Ten in Canada and New Zealand.

#16: Dua Lipa 'Physical' – Moving up eleven spots to #16 in its fifth week in the Top 50, Dua Lipa's 'Physical' claims a new peak. The English star was in Australia this week, headlining the Sydney Gay & Lesbian Mardi Gras Party. Her single 'Don't Start Now' is #2 for a ninth non-consecutive week; it ranks third in the ARIA Singles Charts list of most weeks at #2 without hitting #1.

#25: Sam Smith 'To Die For' – Also appearing at the Mardi Gras Party, Sam Smith has hit a new peak at #25 with 'To Die For'. Smith surprised spectators by marching up Sydney's Oxford St alongside members of the LGBTIQ+ Youth Network as part of their Mardi Gras float.
