3. Dua Lipa – 'Don't Start Now'
4. Doja Cat – 'Say So'
5. Halsey – 'You Should Be Sad'

Singles Highlights

#1: The Weeknd 'Blinding Lights' – The Weeknd holds #1 for a ninth week with 'Blinding Lights'. The Canadian artist's fourth album, After Hours, was released on 20 March. The title track from the album lands at #48 in this week's ARIA Singles Chart.

#7: SAINT JHN 'Roses' – SAINT JHN's 'Roses' continues to storm up the chart. After jumping 18 spots last week, it's up five this week, hitting the Top Ten for the first time. It remains at #2 in the UK.

#15: Sam Smith 'To Die For' – After dropping to #26 last week, Sam Smith's 'To Die For' recovers to move up eleven spots and claim a new peak at #15.

#17: Tame Impala 'The Less I Know The Better' – Multi-ARIA-winners Tame Impala score their first ever appearance in the Singles Chart Top 50 as 'The Less I Know The Better' races to #17. Originally featuring on the group's third album, Currents (#1 Jul. '15), its surge up the chart comes after it topped Triple J's Hottest 100 of the 2010s, which was broadcast on 14 March. On first release in February 2016, the single peaked at #66. Tame Impala's newest album, 'The Slow Rush', hit number #1 on the ARIA Albums Chart last month, and is at #15 this week.

#18: Tones And I 'Bad Child' – Tones And I returns with her first new single for 2020, 'Bad Child'. It was released as a double A-side along with 'Can't Be Happy All the Time'. 2019 was a bumper year for the artist also known as Toni Watson: after making her chart debut in May with 'Johnny Run Away' (#12 Jun. '19), she went on to spend a record-busting 24 weeks at #1 with 'Dance Monkey' (#1 Aug. '19) and took home four ARIA Awards, including Best Female Artist and Breakthrough Artist. 'Dance Monkey' remains at #8 this week and has spent 41 weeks in the ARIA Singles Chart. Another Tones And I single, 'Never Seen The Rain', is at #21 this week.
